New Mesa Chamber Inducted at Dinner

MESA -- President Mark Bodovinitz, other officers and directors were installed at an induction program of the newly organized Mesa Chamber of Commerce Wednesday evening in Bureau Recreation Hall. The hall was filled with Mesa chamber members and well-wishers from Connell, Moses Lake, Pasco, Richland and Kennewick Chambers of Commerce. Gray Clifton, Pasco chamber president, performed the induction.

Other officers installed at the dinner program are Robert Cavin, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Hoff, secretary, and Floyd Vandiver, treasurer. Directors, in addition to the officers, are James Person, Mayor Clyde Snodgrass, Frank Raney, Don Anderson, Les Crawford, N. P. Peabody and Arthur Swanson.

Manton Poe was to have been honored by presentation of lifetime membership and honorary first presidency but the Mesa pioneer was too busy fighting the flood to attend. Mrs. Poe, also a recipient of a lifetime membership, said her husband was happy with the progress made by Mesa and divulged that his last ambition now is to see the Columbia Basin story told in a motion picture. She said Mr. Poe is ready to go to Hollywood to help produce it.

Women of the United Protestant Church served the dinner. The group included Mrs. Poe, Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Sam Poe, Mrs. Vandiver, Mrs. Elmer Hostetler, Mrs. Raney, Mrs. Manuel Tribblehorn, Mrs. Kenneth Dickman, Mrs. Lloyd Russell and Mrs. Bud Schlieker.

The entertainment arranged by Mrs. Chester James featured seven youthful accordion players, Marlene Brown, Loretta Schieb, Sue Ella MacFarland, Susan Hanna and Jerry James, all of Mesa, and Jerry Little and Ricky Ballentine, Eltopia.

Raney, who had presided at organizational meetings of the new chamber, served as toastmaster.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO HOLD HEARING AT CONNELL JAN. 24

Members of the State Highway Commission will be in Connell to conduct a hearing Jan. 24 on the proposed direct East-West route for Highway 11A, Lorenz Goetz, secretary, has informed Chamber of Commerce officials.

A luncheon has been arranged at The Tavern Banquet Room, to which all groups backing the direct route are invited. Franklin County commissioners and the South Columbia Basin Irrigation District directors are among the proponents.

The commission consists of E. C. Hunley, Colfax, chairman; R. E. Hensel, Bremerton; H. E. Morgan, Longview; O. E. Stone, Spokane, and R. A. Moiso, Tacoma.

A tour of the proposed route is slated in the afternoon.

BLUE CRUTCH SALE TO BOOST MARCH OF DIMES FUND

Jess L. Colley Post of American Legion will conduct a Blue Crutch sale Friday and Saturday for the benefit of the March of Dimes. Commander George Stecker said today. Volunteer Legionnaires will handle the sales.

The legion also has already started filling its giant March of Dimes board. Last year the post spearheaded a March of Dimes campaign which cleared $1,551.

Returns to College Marilyn Krug returned to Parkland Monday where she is a student at Pacific Lutheran College.

Sulphur Hit By Another Flood Today

Water was flowing over the railroad tracks and against the foundation of the concrete grain elevator at Sulphur early this afternoon and still rising, said Henry Whitney of Connell Grain Growers, Inc.

The elevator contains several bins of grain. Grain Grower employees kept watch during the afternoon.

The flood was created by drainage from the sand hills and part of Michigan Flat.

WATER RECEDES

The raging Esquatzel drainage ditch which Wednesday threatened to inundate Connell and Mesa was reduced today to a comparatively placid, but still murky, trickle which was less than a foot deep by midafternoon.

Only through the concerted efforts of volunteer firemen, farmers from a wide area, merchants and other residents, inspired by memories of the damaging flood of 1949, was it possible to contain rampant flow of icy flood waters, said Mayor V. G. Sears.

Dams and dikes were hastily improvised with bulldozers and shovel tractors used to build up the walls of the Esquatzel where breakthroughs impended.

The Texas German family moved its household furnishings when the flood water threatened to overflow on the flat on which dwelling is located, between Franklin and Roosevelt Streets.

Piles of sand, dirt and straw were spread along the rim of the ditch along the flat south of Main Street to protect dwellings. Sand barricades were hastily erected

Ground Observer Corps News

BY MRS. WARREN JOHNSON
Supervisor

This marks the end of another four-month term. After eight months of "Operation Homes Watch" we find that we are better trained, better informed, more alert, and more capable. We've had a crackier term, lack crew of team captains to report aircraft this quiet, stormy term. Nearly all of them won their 40-hour wings... the latest ones being Mrs. Ralph Colley, Earl Wirth, D an Jolly and Mrs. Albert Loney.

CONGRATULATIONS to our Observer of the Month, Mrs. Edward Poe. She chalked up a perfect score for sky watching having been on duty EVERY Tuesday and didn't once forget to check in... always on time too! How's that for a fine record? Thanks, Jean.

Our Sunday T.C.'s were right on the ball too. Mr. and Mrs. miss any shifts were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Don Harter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Welch, Mrs. Ray Hayes, Mrs. Glen Janosky and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Robison.

WHAT TO DO Many have asked whether they are to report weather balloons. YES report ALL unusual aerial activity. Use the same form you do when reporting aircraft. Give items 1, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in the usual manner. For item 2 you would say, "weather balloon" or "unknown object," however you determine it. For item 3 you should also tell whether it is ascending or descending. For item 10 give any added information such as hanging objects, color, etc.

If you sight ANY unusual aircraft in distress, when you are NOT on duty by all means call the supervisor at once. The observer on duty at the time may not have seen it. In the near future I plan to send out more detailed information on the subject of unusual aerial activity.

Hope that by now all of you have picked up your copy of the manual at Ben Klindworth's office... if not, do get it THIS weekend. Thanks.

House Guests. Mr. and Mrs. George Withers and children, Joanne and Kerry, Rexburg, Idaho, are house guests this week at the Keith Stock residence while they are looking over the countryside locating farm land. They intend to move to this locality next spring.

JANUARY 9, 1956

MRS. EDWARD POE, above, December Observer of the Month in the Connell Ground Observer Corps, has given long service to the task of protecting this country from possible sneak attack through the airwaves. She was a volunteer during the Skywatch program and has been identified with the present operation since its inception, last month completing four months as team captain. Her substitutes were Mrs. Edgar Loeber, Mrs. Dale Bauermeister and Mrs. Lyle Martin, who takes over this month as team captain. Mrs. Poe has never missed a shift nor has she ever forgotten to check in, according to Mrs. Warren Johnson, supervisor. During good weather Mrs. Poe watched from her yard, but of late has listened and watched as she ironed.

Rain and higher temperatures brought one of the worst floods in the history of Mesa, reported Mrs. Duane Taylor, Graphic correspondent.

Thirty-inches of water flowed over the highway at the north entrance to Mesa, causing the county road staff to detour traffic over the Peplot Road.

In late afternoon crews started stacking baled hay at the northern bridge approaches at Mesa in a vain attempt to curb the rising waters. The bridge withstood the pressure.

Sheffield road extending west from Mesa also was flooded, and closed to traffic. Volunteer crews worked to keep the ditch open and prevent an overflow, across the railroad tracks and flood the downtown district, Mrs. Taylor said. The flood water covered the flat at the Lester-Halley ranch.

MEETING SCHEDULED. The Girl Scout Town Association will meet at the home of Mrs. William Detman at 2 o'clock Tuesday, Jan. 10.

around several homes. "Although the area was flooded, with huge ponds formed, the families did not need to evacuate.

WATER RELEASED

When the water started spilling over the bank at the Franklin Street footbridge the east approach was torn out and a channel cleared by bulldozer to keep the water moving.

When the flood threat became serious in early afternoon, Virginia Harter, at City Hall, telephoned farm families for assistance and the fire station siren was used to summon volunteers. The response, said Mayor Sears, "was terrific."

Approximately 9 feet of water filled the big ditch which customarily is dry. Officials estimated that the ditch carried from 1,400 to 1,600 second feet of water at the crest of the flood.

County road crews worked until 9:30 o'clock to safeguard bridges in the area.

The crest was reached here at around 5 o'clock.

Mesa Chamber

Cannel was represented by Ben Klindworth, chamber president-elect, and Mrs. Klindworth, Mr. and Mrs. Einar Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Darell Peplot, Clifford Campbell and Dave Adams.

Mesa was originally known as Bluff Wells. Peplot said in a brief historical sketch. Peplot recalled that as a boy on a homestead near Mesa the big event of the year was the Independence Day celebration featuring a fish fry and contests of horsemanship similar to present-day rodeos.

Mesa was quite a town in the pioneer period, Peplot said, with livery stables, merchandise stores and saloons.

Ole Moyer, Moses Lake, chairman of the Columbia Basin Chambers of Commerce Committee, reviewed the achievements and goals of that co-operative group. Peplot has represented Mesa on the committee since its inception, even though no chamber existed here until recently.

Rep. Ole Olson (D-Pasco) pledged his assistance to the community in any way possible.

President Bodovintz reviewed progress of the past year, including two new retail establishments and a building materials structure now under construction, but emphasized Mesa is just getting started. A school, bank and highway are the main needs, he said, and all are in prospect.

DIRECTOR SEEKS DATA ON ALKALINE CONTENT

Alkali is regarded as a possible cause of disappointing crops, the past year in the district, Theroff said.

Expanding Merion Bluegrass Operation to Lead to Plant

Plans for the construction of a plant for cleaning and other operations were announced today by A. E. Bonn, former Yakima seed dealer and owner of Unit of Block 11. The plant primarily will be for the handling of Merion bluegrass, for which he plans large-scale production in the Columbia Basin.

Bonn said he had not decided whether to build on his farm or in town. However, he expects to reach a decision in time to have a plant ready to handle the 1956 crop.

Associated with Bonn in the operation is his son-in-law, Larry Hansen, Mesa, a graduate of Northwestern University business school. Bonn's present acreage in Merion bluegrass consists of his Block 11, Unit 50 of Block 11, leased from G. O. Ewart, and Units 22 and 33 of Block 12. There also are a number of farmers, including Louis Smith and Orvel Simons who grow Merion bluegrass under contract.

Bonn has a quarter interest in the Merion Bluegrass Corp., which has pioneered the growing of seed in Yakima Valley and Columbia Basin. Vaughan Seed Co., Chicago, one of the largest wholesale seed firms in the nation, has 50 per cent of the interest in the corporation. The other two quarters are owned by Bonn and Darcy Sater, who was Bonn's partner in the Yakima seed business.

Last year the growing of Merion bluegrass in Yakima Valley and Columbia Basin represented a half million dollar business, Bonn said. There were approximately 1,200 acres in Merion. There are approximately 550 acres in Merion in the Columbia Basin, of which 250 is controlled by Bonn and the rest under contract.

Bonn hopes to interest more irrigation farmers in the production of Merion bluegrass seed. The main deterrent, Bonn says, is that the crop is not produced until the second year, and most farmers want an immediate cash crop. However, once the crop starts producing, the income more than compensates for the delay of a year, Bonn cited.

A major advantage, according to Bonn, is that a ready market is assured. The maximum national production to date for a year is 800,000 pounds and the potential market is from 8 to 10 million pounds.

Other advantages cited by Bonn are that production costs are comparatively low, yearly crops are assured although weather conditions may affect the yield, and the bluegrass is a soil builder.

Yields of 200 pounds to the acre are normal. The highest yield in Yakima Valley was achieved by Ray Chavet, Grandview, 750 pounds. Yields in Oregon have reached 800 pounds of seed to the acre.

Yields in Yakima Valley have been achieved for five successive years on the original planting, although the first-year yield usually is the highest. The first plantings in the Northwest were six years ago. First plantings in the Basin were in 1954.

The climate in this area is ideal for the growing of Merion, and because the harvesting is done in mid-summer that is little chance for a crop failure. However, high temperatures at the time the seed is setting will adversely affect the yield.

Cutting and binding are done during late June and threshing starts two or three weeks later. Use of stationary threshers is the common practice, although some acreage is being combined.

A. E. BONN displays sample of $5.50 a pound Merion bluegrass seed he expects to use to expand bluegrass acreage in the Columbia Basin.

After the harvest, the acreage may be used for pasture for a month or so.

Seeding may be done at any time, usually between March and August. June 15 to July 15 is the ideal seeding time to avoid cheat grass infestation.

Cheat grass is no problem after the second year because the strong root growth of Merion crowds out the weed, Bonn said. Planting usually is done in 28-inch rows. Unless cultivated, a solid growth is attained by the second year as the roots send up many new plant shoots.

Commercial fertilizer is required for maximum results. Up to 200 pounds of nitrogen is used. Phosphate also is beneficial. Bonn also expects to add gypsum this year to provide extra calcium. Kentucky bluegrass land has high calcium content.

The story behind Merion bluegrass is this: Ever since man started developing sod to suit his landscape and recreational requirements, Kentucky bluegrass has been the favorite among turf grasses.

However, certain problems in connection with the common bluegrass led to a search for a new variety.

Twenty years ago the United States Golf Association Green Section and the Department of Agriculture undertook an extensive selecting and testing program for true turf types. Hundreds of selections obtained throughout the region of bluegrass adaptation were tested.

Joe Valentine, superintendent of Merion Golf Club, Admore, Pa., first noticed the thick dark green turf of bluegrass growing in partial shade at the back of No. 17 tee. He watched it for a number of years, noting its vigorous spreading ability that enabled it to crowd out weeds even under close mowing and while subject to terrific wear. In 1936 he gave a plug of the grass to the Green Section for further testing.

This was done in 14 states and Canada to get a cross-section finding. In 100 out of 102 turf quality ratings Merion received superior.

The main attributes claimed for Merion are resistance to leafspot that thins out stands of common bluegrass allowing weed infestation, ability to withstand close mowing insisted upon by golf courses and many homeowners, heat and drought tolerance that makes it a better summer turf. Merion is equally as acceptable as common Kentucky bluegrass with respect to texture, vigor, color and leaf width.

August, 1953, issue of The National Geographic, published a full-page colored picture of a couple of men having a tug of war over a chunk of turf. The caption reads: "Tough, Disease-resistant, and almost divotproof. This New Grass May Be the Answer to the Golfer's Dream."

The turf is Meyer zoysia planted with Merion bluegrass to form "The Combination." The tug demonstrates the strength of the thick, springy turf.

Bonn's collection of endorsements for Merion also include the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada, American Society of Agronomy and several trade magazines.

Othello and Kahlotus Loom As Main Title Contenders

The Connell Eagles will be hard pressed to defend successfully their Franklin-Adams County League basketball championship this season in view of the preseason strength shown by Othello and Kahlotus. Coach Gene Hoon said this week after watching both rivals in action Washuena is the fourth member of the league.

Kahlotus has a seasoned, rangy team built around such veterans as high-scoring Jim Moore, clever Bob Nunemaker, big Bob Peot and slender David Lathim. The Kahlotus quintet has a 6-2 record in preseason play, losing only to Lind and Columbia. The Koyotes hold a victory over Col-Hi in an earlier contest and hope to square their series with Lind in the next meeting Jan. 7 at Lind.

The Koyotes dropped a 62-68 decision to Col-Hi last Thursday despite a 24-point effort by Moore.

The Huskies have an outstanding performer in the veteran Larry McCourtie and a capable center in Larry Cridger, up from the 1955 B squad. Varsity lettermen, besides McCourtie, are Shirley Christensen, Brent Smith and Steve Garder. Former B squad players now with the varsity include Barney Anthony, Rich Mulligan and Earl Fegert.

The Eagles gave the Alumni a contest the first half, trailing only by 27-24, but their shooting fell off in the second half. Bob Klindworth, now a member of the Willamette University freshman team, paced the visitors with 23 points.

Working the baselines and occasionally breaking into the key-hole for shots, John Tiffany scored 17 points for the Eagles.

The Eagles will play Columbia at Burbank Friday.

Connell Teacher Returns to Post After Guided Tour of Europe

Miss Shirley Day is back to knee bends and hemstitching after a long and delightful Christmas season. The Connell High School home economics and physical education instructor saw London and New York all decked out for Christmas, reached her home in Spokane four days ahead of Santa and came on to Connell in time to greet the New Year and her students.

During Miss Day's absence, to tour Europe, her classes were conducted by Mrs. Elmer Hostetler, Mesa.

Although Miss Day doesn't profess to be an authority on art, she says some knowledge rubbed off on her during the extended tour.

"In Europe, nearly every cathedral and public building has the work of a great painter or sculptor," Miss Day said, "and churches, art galleries and museums are the main interests. One can't help but learn."

Miss Day started from Spokane Sept. 4, and embarked on a Dutch liner from Hoboken, N. J. The ship docked at Southampton, England. The party of 16 tourists spent three days in London, then crossed to the continent to tour Belgium, Holland, Western Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France.

The Connell teacher was most impressed with people of Switzerland and Italy. She described the Italians as a friendly, happy people.

As an example, she was seated by an elderly couple on a train trip from Venice to Florence. She couldn't speak Italian. They knew no English. She got out her little book, and by translating word by word, they had a slow but highly entertaining conversation.

At St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome the tourists saw Pope Pius, on the occasion of the Festival of the Children of Italy.

Although art was the main interest, the travelers also visited a number of factories. They went through a glove factory and leather works in Italy, and were impressed by the craftsmanship and reasonable prices. They visited candy and perfume factories in Grass, France. Workers used flowers, such as violets and carnations, in the manufacture of candy but Miss Day said she wouldn't want a steady diet of such delicacies.

Farmers grow flowers the year around and deliver them, in season, directly to the perfume factory. Thus the Riviera, a beautiful field of flowers, is a beautiful sight. Also, bees abound.

The tourists also visited a glass factory in Venice, a lace factory in Belgium, a diamond factory in Amsterdam, and a wine factory in Germany. Courtesy samples in the last plant were meager.

Miss Day used numerous modes of travel during the trip. She rode on trams up Mt. Rigi and also to Heidelberg Castle, enjoyed boat trips on Lake Lucerne and up the Rhine River, and traveled on trains and buses in the various countries visited.

In Paris, of course, the tourists took in the Folies Bergere. The girls were beautiful, the costumes gorgeous and everything highly artistic. With the French the folies are an expression of art, and to appreciate the show one must consider it from the French viewpoint, Miss Day said. She thought the show magnificent.

Miss Day and two other friends from Spokane left the touring party at Paris, taking an airliner to London where they rented an Austin car for a month to tour England, Scotland and Wales.

The three drove 3,000 miles and saw nearly every castle on the Isles, the teacher said. Back in London, they attended the opera and a number of stage plays. The opera and stage form the primary entertainment of Londoners, Miss Day found, so much so that it was difficult to obtain tickets. The London opera is presented in English, which contributed to its enjoyment.

The Christmas season started in London on Oct. 16. Streets and stores were decorated similar to Yuletide raiment in the United States, and the stores were nicely arranged, Miss Day said.

New York was all decked out in Christmas finery when the travelers returned, with Fifth Avenue and Rockefeller Center particularly impressive. At Rockefeller Center two rows of angels extended from the open-air rink to a massive Christmas tree.

Also, the tourists visited Washington, D. C. with side trips to Mt. Vernon, Arlington Cemetery and the U. S. mint. In view of the expense of her 15-week journey, Miss Day would have appreciated some samples from coin factory but Uncle wasn't putting out.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Rust

ELTOPIA--Funeral services for Mrs. Paul (Helen) Rust will be held Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Marshall Funeral Home in Walla Walla. Interment will be in Walla Walla. Pall bearers will be L. W. Burkett, J. S. Bahler, J. W. Barknecht, Mark Eaker, T. M. Russell and Fred Saalbach, all of Eltopia.

Mrs. Rust is survived by her husband, Paul, who is an inspector for the Bureau of Reclamation, Eltopia construction field division; her daughter, Mrs. Louis King of Everett; son, S/Sgt. Donald Rust of the Air Force, Destin Fla.; sisters Mrs. Dan Heimbigner, Walla Walla; Mrs. E. E. Batwell, Redding, Calif.; and Mrs. Mary Becker, Tacoma, and brothers, Alex Schaub, Walla Walla; Phillip Stump, Portland, and Sam Stump, Tacoma. There are five grandchildren.

Mrs. Rust was stricken on Christmas Day in the home of her daughter, Mrs. King, in Everett. She was taken to the hospital immediately, then transferred to Virginia Mason in Seattle where she died Dec. 30. She was born July 12, 1909. She and Rust had lived in Eltopia for the past three years, and the previous 12 years in Coulee Dam.
